Jenny Kramer is a co-leader of the White Collar, Government & Internal Investigations Team, who focuses her practice on white collar criminal defense, SEC and other regulatory enforcement, internal investigations, and complex commercial litigation. She represents financial institutions, corporations, and individuals across a range of industries in international and domestic criminal matters, including corruption and bribery allegations, money laundering, the Bank Secrecy Act, FCPA, FCA, and health care and securities. Jenny made headlines as part of the defense team representing U.S. Sen. Robert Menendez against government charges of bribery and corruption, where the charges were dismissed with prejudice following a three-month trial. Jenny also made news by winning a unanimous decision from the Third Circuit overturning a lower court ruling and vacating a decision to unseal the identity of client “John Doe” in the Bridgegate scandal in New Jersey.

Jenny served as an assistant U.S. attorney in the District of New Jersey for more than nine years. She conducted and prosecuted large-scale, complex financial fraud investigations, including market manipulation and investment schemes, securities, corporate, mail and wire fraud, and insider trading. Jenny worked closely with the SEC in joint investigations yielding administrative and criminal penalties. She tried to verdict numerous cases involving charges of conspiracy, fraud, obstruction of justice, public corruption, and violations of the Federal Election Campaign Act.

Representative Experience

- Representing the former head of sales at OneTaste, a San Francisco-based wellness company, in her defense against an indictment, pending in the E.D.N.Y., which charges conspiracy to commit forced labor.
- Representing a former assistant U.S. attorney from the District of Delaware, before the House Judiciary Committee in connection with requested testimony regarding the Hunter Biden investigation.
- Representing an American multinational information technology services and consulting company in connection with an ongoing criminal prosecution of two former executives of Cognizant for violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act.
- Represented New Jersey Senator Robert Menendez against government charges of bribery and corruption that were dismissed with prejudice following a three-month trial that resulted in a hung jury.
- Obtained a unanimous precedential decision from the Third Circuit, which rejected efforts by a consortium of news media seeking the disclosure of names in a letter containing a list of alleged unindicted co-conspirators connected to the New Jersey “Bridgegate” scandal.

- Retained by U.S. Soccer to conduct an internal investigation in an allegation against the U.S. Men's National Team head coach Gregg Berhalter and an allegation against others related to interactions with members of the U.S. Soccer staff.
- Represented a device manufacturer in an FCA investigation regarding speaker fees, lavish meals, and other remuneration paid to a physician consultant. Although the physician was under criminal investigation and ultimately pleaded guilty to health care fraud, we successfully negotiated a speedy civil resolution with the government for less than the cost of defense, without a monitor or corporate integrity agreement.
- Represented a medical products company in an internal investigation.
- Represented a physician in a DOJ investigation regarding allegations of conspiracy to commit health care fraud.
- Represented a medical staffing company in an internal investigation regarding allegations of Medicare and Medicaid fraud.
- Represented an individual in a DOJ investigation, with related a FCA matter, regarding the marketing and promotional practices of a medical devices company.
- Represented an individual in a DOJ investigation regarding allegations of Medicare and Medicaid fraud which resulted in a declination.
- Represented current and former employees of a pharmaceutical company in a large-scale DOJ investigation relating to diversion.
- Represented a dietary supplement retailer in a DOJ investigation regarding its sale of potentially unlawful dietary supplements.
- Representing the former CFO of a major technology corporation in SEC enforcement action pending in the S.D.N.Y.
- Represented an individual charged with racketeering and wire fraud conspiracy in a DOJ investigation into soccer's international governing body, FIFA.
- Represented a chief engineer at a national technology company in a DOJ criminal investigation which resulted in a declination.
- Represented an international financial institution in parallel investigations by the DOJ, New York Department of Financial Services, and other regulatory authorities.
